

BIDDING ADIEU

Chinarts Says Farewell to Final Years

R VAISHNAVI

Bidding adieu to our beloved students! Wishing you all the best

Chala: The air was filled with a mix of emotions - happiness, sadness, and nostalgia - as Chinmaya Arts and Science College for Women bid farewell to its final year students. The grand farewell party, "Crescendo - The Last Hurrah," was a fitting tribute to the graduating students, celebrating their achievements and memories.

The event, themed "This Isn't the End," was a masterclass in nostalgia, with students and faculty reminiscing about the good old days. The college union had organized the farewell, and it was evident that no stone had been left unturned to make it a memorable day.

As the students gathered in the college auditorium, the excitement was palpable. The organizers had planned a range of activities, including games and entertainment, to keep the students engaged. But it was the emotional speeches and heartfelt goodbyes that stole the show.

The farewell party was more than just a send-off; it was a celebration of the students' journey, their growth, and their achievements. It was a reminder that as they embark on a new chapter in their lives, they will always carry the memories of their time in college with them.

ASTHRA 2025

Where Stars Align for Success

CK SREENANDA

Chala: The Department of Management Studies at Sree Narayana College, Kannur, organized a management fest, "Asthra," on February 12. A team of over 30 students from Chinmaya Arts and Science College for Women participated in the fest, which featured various competitions.

The event aimed to provide a platform for management students to showcase their skills, knowledge, and creativity in various fields of management. The students actively participated in the com petitions, demonstrating their skills and knowledge in management.

Asthra 2025 was a huge success, with student participants from various colleges and universities. The event provided a platform for management students to showcase their skills and knowledge, and to learn from each other.

The organizers look forward to hosting more such events in the future, providing opportunities for management students to grow and develop.

Sounding the Alarm

Why Arts and Sports Matter

As we navigate the complexities of the 21st century, it's easy to overlook the significance of arts and sports education in our schools and colleges. However, these programs are not just niceties; they are necessities. They foster creativity, critical thinking, innovation, and physical skills that are essential for success in today's fast-paced, ever-changing world.

Research has shown that students who participate in arts and sports programs tend to perform better academically, have better attendance records, and are more likely to graduate from college. The arts provide a platform for self-expression, allowing students to communicate their thoughts, feelings, and ideas in a unique and powerful way. Sports, on the other hand, teach valuable life skills such as teamwork, discipline, and perseverance.

Despite the numerous benefits of arts and sports education, many colleges are cutting back on these programs due to budget constraints and a focus on standardized testing. This trend is alarming, as it threatens to deprive future generations of the creative and physical skills that are essential for a well-rounded education.

It's time for us to recognize the value of arts and sports education and take action to preserve and promote them. This means providing adequate funding for these programs, hiring qualified teachers and coaches, and incorporating arts and sports education into the curriculum. We must also recognize that arts and sports are not just extracurricular activities, but essential components of a well-rounded education.

By prioritizing arts and sports education, we can help students develop the skills they need to succeed in all areas of life. We owe it to ourselves, our children, and our communities to ensure that arts and sports education continue to thrive in our schools and colleges.

Remembering the Bravehearts

KV AFRA

Go remember pulwama heroes: Coming generations will never forget their sacrifice

We remember the ultimate sacrifice of 40 brave Central Reserve Police Force (CRPF) personnel who lost their lives in the dastardly Pulwama terror attack on February 14, 2019.

The attack, carried out by Pakistan-based Jaish-e-Mohammed (JeM), shook the nation, but it also brought out India's resilience and unity.

The government took swift action against the perpetrators, and the country came together to mourn the loss of its brave soldiers. As we observe Pulwama Day, we honor the martyrs and reaffirm our commitment to combating terrorism.

The attack may have left deep scars, but it has also strengthened India's resolve to protect its sovereignty and territorial integrity.

Let us take a moment to remember the safety and security of our citizens.

Galentine's Day

A Celebration of Friendship and Unity

N MANASAPRAMOD

Sisterhood of love and support! Chinarts students and faculty come together to celebrate Galentine's Day

Chala: The students and faculty of Chinmaya Arts and Science College for Women came together on February 14 to celebrate Galentine's Day, a special occasion dedicated to friendship, appreciation, and empowerment. Organized by the Department of English, the event was a lively and heartwarming affair filled with exciting activities, music, and dancing.

The celebration began with a welcome speech by Sumayya NR, College Chairperson representative from the Department of English, who emphasized the importance of female friendships and self-love. A special highlight of the event was the Love Letter Box, displayed in the college library, where students had the opportunity to express their gratitude and admiration through hand written notes. Love letters and appreciation messages were dedicated to teachers, workers, security staff, and even the principal, recognizing their continuous support and hard work in making the college a better place. The event was a grand success, reinforcing the spirit of love, unity, and friendship at Chinarts.

Star of the week

Surya: The Star of the Track

R VAISHNAVI

Meet Surya D, the athletic sensation from Chinmaya Arts and Science College for Women in Chala, Kannur. This talented young athlete has been making waves in the athletic circuit with her impressive performances.

Surya's athletic career has been marked by a series of impressive wins. She secured a third prize in High Jump at the Kannur University Athletic Meet 2024-25, followed by a first prize in Heptathlon at the Kannur University Athletic Meet 2023-24. Her crowning glory came when she swept the top spots in the College Sportsmeet 2025, winning gold medals in Long Jump, Shotput, and Javelin Throw.

Surya sprints her way to success

Surya's remarkable achievements are a testament to her hard work and dedication. Her passion for athletics is evident in her performances, and she is widely regarded as one of the most talented young athletes in the region.

Surya's success is not just a personal achievement; it's also an inspiration to young athletes everywhere. Her commitment to her sport and her perseverance in the face of challenges make her a role model for anyone looking to make a mark in the world of athletics.

Golden moments on the track!

Shaping Business Minds: Association of Commerce and Management Launched

R VAISHNAVI

Chala: Chinmaya Arts and Science College for Women is set to host the inauguration of Commerce and Management Association. The event, scheduled to take place on February 17, will feature Chandrabhanu M, former Vice Principal and Associate Professor of Commerce at Government Brennen College, as the chief guest.

The inauguration marks a significant step in fostering academic and professional growth among students pursuing business and management studies.

Chandrabhanu M addressed the gathering, highlighting the importance of practical exposure and industry insights in shaping future business leaders. His speech emphasized the role of commerce and management education in adapting to the evolving global market.

The association aims to create a platform for students to engage in skill-building activities, networking opportunities, and industry interactions. With this initiative, the department seeks to enhance the learning experience beyond textbooks, preparing students for real-world challenges in the business domain.

Tuning In International Radio Day

N MANASAPRAMOD

Chala: The Campus Sign team marked International Radio Day with a vibrant celebration on February 13. The event highlighted the significance of radio as a powerful medium of communication and its evolution in the digital age.

Campus sign team members gathered for engaging discussions and interactive sessions, where students, media enthusiasts, and journalism faculty shared insights on the history, impact, and future of radio in a rapidly changing media landscape.

A special segment allowed students to experience live reporting and podcasting, emphasizing the importance of storytelling and real-time information dissemination.

The celebration concluded with a session where students expressed their views on radio's role in their lives.

The Campus Sign team received appreciation for their efforts in organizing an event that blended learning with entertainment, reinforcing the importance of traditional and modern radio in media education.

As the event wrapped up, students and faculty left with a renewed appreciation for radio's enduring influence, ensuring its place in the digital era.